

You push yourself, you push your gear, you travel the unknown.

You do it for the adventure

We do it to get you there.

Adventure cruisers put our gear to the toughest test. Hardware must be reliable and easy to take care of.

Pelagic Expeditions Skip Novak is a sailor with a passion for adventure. His company Pelagic Expeditions offers “go anywhere, do anything” sailing expeditions to high latitude destinations like Antarctica, the Falklands, Spitzbergen and Iceland. On its most recent passage, Pelagic Australis dropped off a party of six to hike the Shackleton Traverse across South Georgia Island.

Pelagic Expedition vessels are built to operate for long periods in the most remote oceans of the world. Sail handling is by people power so systems must work smoothly. That’s why Skip chose Harken furling, winches and Battcars.

“A smooth-running mast track system is a must for Pelagic Australis. We often operate in 30-knot winds where reefing easily in big seas is critical to our safety. When I think back on my bloodied hands, the Harken Battcar system is a dream come true.”

— Skip Novak, Pelagic Expeditions

For more on Pelagic Expeditions: www.pelagic.co.uk

For more on Harken Battcars contact your nearest Harken dealer or email our Tech Team at technicalservice@harken.com.

The journey is the destination.

